

Last Wedding Post - and I mean it!

It has been nearly a month since the big day and it seems like I should put up one final post on how things finished up. As mentioned earlier many of the potted sunflowers were blooming on the big day, though some were only in bud. Three and a half weeks after the big day, many of those are now blooming. I just cannot get enough of these great plants - and really, these sunflower cultivars do not count as native plants in my book. They are so photogenic! So here are a few to ogle over.
