

What kind of tomato is this?

Why do I always lose the tags? I bought this tomato plant somewhere, at sometime, and it grew and grew and grew. The tomatoes are very big - see the tiny cherry tomato on the plate for scale. Actually the tomato is even bigger than it looks here. It is about the size of a large grapefruit.

Anyway, they look pretty yucky so I decided to cook them up. Before throwing them into a pot I tasted a bit and surprise, it was yummy. Low acid, sweet. Not great but good. And look how cool they look sliced.

Thought I'd also put in a picture I took today of a tomato-red dragonfly. Only had time for one shot before she was off and gone.

Check out the home page to my website for a whole slide show of garden critters, and upcoming plant sale dates.